Careful academic planning is an important part of the study abroad experience. You will want to work closely with your academic advisor early on to make sure the courses or subjects that you are thinking about taking overseas will fulfill graduation requirements. Also, knowing what courses you need to take in general will help you to determine which study abroad program will be right for you.

In consultation with your academic advisor, complete this form by listing any USC requirements that you may need to fulfill while abroad. If you already know what program you want to apply for, you can also list potential courses and/or subject areas offered by the program that you wish to take. Program catalogs and host institution websites can provide you with this type of information.

Note: This form is intended to help you plan your coursework abroad; it is not a guarantee, or evaluation, of credit to be earned.
